

PROGRAMME SPECIFIC OUTCOME- HONOURS AND GENERAL

DEPARTMENT OF POLITICAL SCIENCE

Scope of the Syllabus:

Political Science is the most important branch of Social Science and its chief concern is with the political behavior of individuals, groups of individuals, agencies, institutions, organizations, et al. Since all these are subject to change and they are changing continuously the subject matter of Political Science is bound to change.

Political Science as discipline deals with various aspects like:

- a. Study of state government it deals with the nature and information of the state and tries to understand various forms and function of the government.
- b. Study of associations and institutions in organized way the fundamental problems of Political Science include, first an investigation of the origin and nature of the state. Second, an inquiry in to nature, history and forms of political institutions and third, deduction, therefore, so far as possible, of laws of political growth and development.
- c. Study of national and international problems modern demands of defense of territory, representative government and national unity have made Political Science independence but that of state sovereignty also.
- d. Study of Political behavior of man it may be said that the character of Political Science in all its part is determined by its basic per-supposition regarding man.
- e. Study of the past, present and the future of development. Political Science attempts to explain the meaning and the essential nature of the state and deals with the laws of its progress and development within itself and in relation to international organizations and other states.
- f. Study of the concept of power, authority and influence with the behavior revolution is the central topic for study has become the study of power. Consequently the scope has widened to include new aspects like political socialization, political culture, political development and informal structures like interest and pressure groups.

COURSE OUTCOME

HONOURS COURSE

Paper-I

Students having Honours course equipped themselves with Western and Indian Political Thought or Political Philosophy by which they can study of question concerning power, justice, right, law and other issues pertaining to governance. Whereas Political Science assumes that these concepts are what they are, Political Thought asks how they have come about and to what effect.

Paper-II

The government and politics in India is an under graduate Political Science programme. This paper concerned with the study of Indian state, government and politics. It deals extensively with the theory and practice of politics and analyses of political structure and behavior. There is a scope to a student is widespread in India as students can go in various political fields and its related areas.

Paper-III

Through this paper helps students to understand the concepts that have shaped our politics, including freedom, equality, individuality, democracy and justice from the Idealistic and Marxist point of view.

Paper-IV

With this paper students can upgraded themselves with the various types of government and constitutions which are conducting democratic systems in deferent countries, i.e., U.S.A, U.K, P.R.C and Switzerland. Students can benefited themselves with a comparative study between the government and constitutions. In the other hand they also compare with the Indian government and constitution by which they acquire knowledge regarding good governance.

Paper-V

This paper known as International Relations by which students can acquire knowledge of International Organizations, laws and foreign policy between the deferent states. They can acquire the basic concepts regarding Neo-Colonialism, Globalization and Regionalism. In this paper students also acquire knowledge with the International issues of Terrorism, Environment and Human Rights.

Paper-VI

Society, State and Politics is represents burning issues of Political Science. The paper helps students know how interact with society and state in deferent way i.e., political parties, interest groups, pressure groups. The question of modernization and women empowerment is take an important place into discussion.

Paper-VII

Public Administration and Indian Administration is the main theme of this paper. Students can acquire theoretical knowledge regarding administration and side by side they can interested with Indian Administration is working in our country.

Paper-VIII

The paper Colonialism and Nationalism in India helps students to know about past colonial history and anti-colonial struggle in India. The role of different organization which are originate in the country from different social and religious point of view. In this paper Non-Cooperation and Passive Movements also took an important place in Indian freedom struggle and also different revolutionary movements were took a central place in the freedom struggle.

PASS COURSE

Paper-I

In the general stream Political Theory is the key concern paper by which students enable to acquire knowledge on the theoretical knowledge in different aspects.

Paper-II

With this paper students can upgrade themselves with the various types of government and constitutions which are conducting democratic systems in different countries, i.e., U.S.A, U.K, P.R.C and Switzerland. Students can benefit themselves with a comparative study between the government and constitutions. In the other hand they also compare with the Indian government and constitution by which they acquire knowledge regarding good governance

Paper-III

The government and politics in India is an under graduate Political Science programme. This paper concerned with the study of Indian state, government and politics. It deals extensively with the theory and practice of politics and analyses of political structure and behavior. There is a scope to a student is widespread in India as students can go in various political fields and its related areas.

Paper-IV

Secularism, Communism, Caste and Politics are the central question in every political system. With this paper: Contemporary India: Political and Administrative Issues – students can enable to know briefly different burning issues of Indian Political System which are working in different manner.